

Call for Papers

OPEN SECTION

medien & zeit 2/2024

Editors: Erik Koenen (Bremen), Christina Krakovsky (Vienna),
Mike Meißner (Fribourg), Hendrik Michael (Bamberg)

For the Open Section of medien & zeit issue 2/2024 we invite you to contribute articles in German or English from the whole range of historical communication and media sciences. Contributions can present scientific results as well as discuss methodological and theoretical questions and concepts of historical communication science. The submitted article has to be an initial publication, not published or designated to be published elsewhere. Each contribution submitted to the Open Section will be peer-reviewed after formal and content-related criteria have been checked.

Exemplary subject areas for individual analyses, case studies or overarching approaches are:

- History of journalism (institutions, formats, genres, individuals,...)
- History and development of individual media and media genres (e.g., radio, television, photography, online media, music media,...)
- History of communication and media policy (institutions, processes, persons)
- History of media production and reception
- History of media technologies
- History of communication studies
- Methods and theories of communication history
- Change of public spheres

Submissions are welcome in English or German. Submitted extended abstracts (max. 1,000 words including spaces, excluding notes and references, and a descriptive title in an Open Office or MS Word file) outlining a prospective contribution will be reviewed by the editors and the guest editor of the issue. On this basis, authors will be invited to submit full papers (max. 7,000 words including title, abstract, keywords, tables, figures, and bibliography). All full papers will be peer-reviewed. In a possible revision phase after the peer review, authors can extend the length of the article to a maximum of 8,000 words, taking into account the suggestions of the reviewers and editors. medien & zeit is fully open access and does not charge its authors any fees for editing the articles (no apc).

Submission of extended abstracts: 31 October 2023

Recommendation for acceptance or rejection in principle: November 2023

Submission of Full Papers: March 2024

Publication of the Paper: earliest in issue 2/2024

Please send submissions to cfp@medienundzeit.at